Clients as volunteers

Many of our volunteers were once clients who want to give something back to the service that helped them.

Having experience of the service from both sides can be extremely valuable. However, it is Citizens Advice policy not to accept current clients as volunteers as there is a risk of a conflict of interest arising.

Please get in touch if you would like to discuss this with us.

Initial Adviser: Telephone

All our new advice volunteers are trained to be Initial Advisers.

As an Initial Adviser you will likely be the first person a client speaks to when they call the Citizens Advice helpline or use the Citizens Advice Email or Web Chat service.

Most of our Initial Advisers are volunteers and we could not run the service without them.

We'll provide full training.

Most of the training is online but you will need to attend the Hanley office for a couple of days of in-person training. After that you can volunteer at your chosen location.

There will always be a duty supervisor to consult with and to give you support.

Other Roles: Once you have some experience, you can choose to train as a form filling adviser or full adviser if you wish to. We also occasionally have opportunities in our specialist teams.

We are committed to being a disability friendly employer. Please contact us to discuss any extra support needs you may have. You can train as an email or webchat Initial Adviser if you can't use a telephone.
